THE OCCASION.

The occasion that is to be specially commemorated during the Golden Jubilee Week is the opening of the doors of the College of California, in Oakland, in 1860. In the same year the campus at Berkeley was formally dedicated. Since that time there has been a continuous course of instruction of college and university grade, under an unbroken line of professors, and with a constantly growing body of students and graduates bound together by common traditions.

The College of California was the outcome of the unselfish efforts of a small group of men, of whom Dr. S. H. Willey was the earliest mover and is now the sole survivor. His activity in this matter dates back to April, 1849. In 1853 the master mind of Henry Durant came to the aid of the cause. In 1860 the efforts of Willey and Durant were reinforced by the fine spirit of Martin Kellogg.

In 1868 the officers of the College of California transferred to the State all their property, including the campus at Berkeley, on the sole condition that, along with the projected College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, the State should maintain a College of Letters, to the end that there might be a real university in California.

The University of California now proposes to celebrate the memory of this institution which was founded and nurtured by Willey, Durant, and Kellogg, and which sacrificed its whole existence for the sake of a larger idea.

Transportation.

Reduced rates will be available on the transportation lines from all points in California. Parties of fifteen or more, from points outside the State, can arrange for reduced rates by applying to the local passenger agents. Receipt certificates must be procured from the agent upon purchase of ticket and for privilege of reduced return rate must be signed by Milton T. Farmer, Secretary of the Jubilee Committee.

Public Invited.

The public is cordially invited to attend and participate in the festivities of the Jubilee Celebration.

Class Headquarters.

North Hall is to be the rendezvous of all classes from '73 to '01, and also of the class of 1907. South Hall for '01 and '02; the new Mining Building for '03 and '05, while California Hall will accommodate '04, '06, '08, and '09.

University Exhibits.

Each Department of the University will keep "open house" on certain days of the Celebration, to be announced later. The public is invited to call. An exhibit with charts illustrating the growth of the University, its students, alumni, faculty, endowments, etc., will be displayed at the Bacon Library.

For Further Information.

A bureau of information will be maintained during the Celebration near the Southern Pacific passenger depot, Berkeley station. Inquiries as to hotel accommodations or other details of the Jubilee should be addressed to the ALUMNI SECRETARY, 201 California Hall.

Special reunions of debating, fraternal and honor societies are arranged for the Jubilee Week.

THE CALIFORNIA ALUMNI WEEKLY.

If you are not already familiar with the alumni paper a copy will be sent to you upon request. The publication is less than two years old, but it has surely come to stay. A prominent citizen of San Francisco, a '98 man, has volunteered the following estimate of its achievement:

"Much has been done through the instrumentality of this little paper for the betterment of the University and the good-fellowship of the 'Grads.' "

If you wish to keep up-to-date with the progress of the University, with the achievements of your fellow-alumni, and with current events in the college world generally, the California Alumni Weekly is just what you want.

The subscription is one dollar and fifty cents a year. Combination Rate: A special price of two dollars is offered to those combining alumni dues and subscription to the Alumni Weekly.

The souvenir 16-page Jubilee number of the Alumni Weekly will contain specially contributed articles by the best known alumni of each decade and by each of the class secretaries. Its Alumni Notes column will be unusually comprehensive. The features of the Jubilee will be detailed in its columns. This number will be sent to all old or new subscribers without additional cost.
